By the light of the Moon: Book 1 Ira Tabankin

posted on 5/13 this is a COMPLETELY REWRITTEN edition, A large asteroid strikes the moon breaking large chunks of the moon off. Hundreds of these moon rocks are grabbed by Earth's gravity. On a warm Friday June morning hundreds of rocks strike the world killing billions. The survivors fight for life, they fight for food and clean water. The rocks generate a mile high tidal wave, they kick up massive debris into the atmosphere, blocking sunlight from reaching the ground, kicking off a new ice age. A small subdivision in northern Virginia comes together to fight off gangs and a rouge government agency trying to break any survivor's spirits so they can be put into FEMA camps. By the Light of The Moon tells the story of what happens when the northern hemisphere is threatened with a new ice age, what happens when people are faced with limited supplies. How people respond to the crisis and how some plan to use it for their advantage.
