Argumentation in Multi-Agent Systems: First International Workshop, ArgMAS 2004, New York, NY, USA, July 19, 2004, Revised Selected and Invited Papers (Lecture Notes in Computer Science)

The theory of argumentation is a rich, interdisciplinary area of research lying across philosophy, communication studies, linguistics, and psychology (at least). Its techniques and results have found a wide range of applications in both theoretical and practical branches of artificial intelligence and computer science. Several theories of argumentation with various semantics have been proposed in the literature. Multi-agent systems theory has picked up argument-inspired approaches and specifically argumentation-theoretic results from many different areas. The community of researchers in argumentation and multi-agent systems is currently presented with a unique opportunity to integrate the various understandings of argument into a coherent and core part of the functioning of autonomous computational systems. The benefits range from extended semantics of arguments construed as relationships between epistemic atoms, through conversation protocols for argumentation with serendipitous information exchange, to models of dialectical practical reasoning, both intra- and inter-agent (and a mixture of the two). In all these cases argumentation is used to structure knowledge representation, reasoning and agent interaction, and offers a potential means of better integrating these disparate problems.
