On Stars Not Falling Scott Shallenbarger

On Stars Not Falling is a full-length play which tells the story of college friends who dropped out of school following a shared, traumatic experience. Five months later, they gather for a birthday party on the rooftop of a Chicago three-flat. An unexpected guest who transforms their lives forever interrupts the celebration. This 90-minute play empowers those who feel small; offers faith to those who feel lost; and, ultimately, awakens the courage in us all to stand-up, move forward, and claim our own happiness. On Stars Not Falling has enjoyed productions in professional theatres, college theatres, and high school theatres throughout the nation. The play has often been called "life-changing."
